OVERVIEW

The world's leading thought Leadership event on Corporate Social Responsibility – The Global CSR & ESG Awards™ will host the 14th year in 2022 as a physical event in Hanoi, Vietnam. With the 2021 edition turning virtual, the 2022 event will return to the physical event format on 3 November 2022. At the 2021 virtual event, we unveiled the new event Global ESG Awards logo which will reinforce the longstanding Global CSR Summit & Awards to the new event branding: “THE GLOBAL CSR & ESG SUMMIT & AWARDS 2022™”

In 2021, where the world was focused on overcoming and adapting to the prolonged impact of the Covid-19 pandemic, new challenges emerged on the economic and geopolitical fronts catalyzed by Russian military aggression upon Ukraine. The largest war in Europe since World War II has had a number of repercussions across the globe, most notably a global energy crisis and food security crisis. So instead of a welcome period of global recovery post Covid, we are instead entering a period of even greater instability and flux.

On the environmental front, the world is continuing to witness extreme volatility in its short term weather and longer term climate patterns. These conditions will only exacerbate the food and water security risks associated with drought, flooding, storms and wildfires. These converging issues have created much higher levels of risk for the human race in terms of food and water security. Indeed, the World Bank recently announced that overfishing is among the biggest challenges threatening the health of the world's oceans, the livelihoods of millions living in coastal communities, the seafood and related industries, not to mention the threat to food sufficiency for the human race.

Increased regulations will push companies to focus on the social factor in ESG. Companies will come to realise that in order to meet the environmental targets set in COP26, they will have to work closely with local communities and farmers including with vendors in their supply chains as climate issues are intricately linked to a myriad of stakeholders and systems. However, there is also a risk that with increased regulation will come a 'tick box' mentality to achieve compliance rather than what is actually needed to effectively contribute to local and regional requirements.

The theme of this year's event, “BEYOND NET ZERO & ESG” will inspire participants to discuss and go beyond the 'tick box' issues of ESG and CSR to incorporate broader and workable strategies in addressing the unprecedented situation facing the world today.

The 14th Annual 2022 Global CSR & ESG Summit & Awards™ will invite some of the thought leaders of our time from various industries to share some of the most innovative ideas for change. Joined by hundreds of senior executives and CSR & ESG professionals from the region and the rest of the world, this event promises to be another unforgettable experience for everyone. Lastly, as always, we will conclude the conference with our signature touch on day two which will be a memorable cultural tour.

Agenda

DAY 1, 3 NOVEMBER 2022- CONFERENCE

Prof Martin Blake (www.martinblake.com)

9.05

Guest of Honour Speech

Mr Vu Minh Ly, Deputy Director,
Communication Center For Environment Resource Communication

9.20

Keynote Address: Unleashing the Power of Social Responsibility in a Warm and Wobbly World

The three pillars of modern civilization (colonialism, patriarchy, and industrial economism) are rapidly losing their lustre and their relevance. Endless economic growth, an obsession with profits, industrial modes of production, and rampant competition are part of an obsolete narrative that helped shape the very conditions which are now signaling the collapse of our civilization and might even threaten our species with an uninhabitable planet.

Yet each element of the modern business enterprise - from its legal obligations and commercial motives to the way it chooses to organise and manage itself and its relationships, has been left stranded in flawed dogma and a moral credo that is misaligned, ineffective, maladaptive and, at worst, cancerous.

Organisations that are serious about creating a generative CSR+ESG practice will be in the forefront of revitalizing the key relationships between business and society. But how should this be accomplished? What are we not doing that needs to be done? And how must we change our thinking now?

Prof Richard Hames, Founder and Executive Director, Center For The Future & Fellow, World Academy Of Art And Science

9.50

Integrating ESG Into Business Strategy

- How can companies formulate CSR activities within the ESG framework?
- How can ESG be integrated into business strategies?

Dr Tim Rackett, Dean, Swiss Institute Of Management And Innovation

3.10 Biodiversity, Reforestation and Regenerative Agriculture – Why Should Companies Be Concerned

With the fight against deforestation being one of the main commitments during the COP26, many companies have realised that they are still rather exposed to the effects of deforestation related risks. Biodiversity and reforestation are important to maintaining the resilience and regenerative abilities of nature.

Speaker

Nguyen Thi Pieu Thuy, Plastics, Smart Cities and Marine Protected Areas Land from WWF Vietnam
